NEW QUESTION: 1 Which three statements are true about SQL plan directives? A. They are used to gather only missing statistics. B. They are created for a query expression where statistics are missing or the cardinality estimates by the optimizer are incorrect. C. They instruct the maintenance job to collect missing statistics or perform dynamic sampling to generate a more optimal plan. D. They instruct the optimizer to create only column group statistics. E. Improve plan accuracy by persisting both compilation and execution statistics in the SYSAUX tablespace. F. They are tied to a specific statement or SQL ID. Answer: B, C, D Explanation: During SQL execution, if a cardinality misestimate occurs, then the database creates SQL plan directives. During SQL compilation, the optimizer examines the query corresponding to the directive to determine whether missing extensions or histograms exist (D). The optimizer records any missing extensions. Subsequent DBMS_STATS calls collect statistics for the extensions. The optimizer uses dynamic sampling whenever it does not have sufficient statistics corresponding to the directive. (B, not C) E: Currently, the optimizer monitors only column groups. The optimizer does not create an extension on expressions. Incorrect: Not A: SQL plan directives are not tied to a specific SQL statement or SQL ID. Note: * A SQL plan directive is additional information and instructions that the optimizer can use to generate a more optimal plan. For example, a SQL plan directive can instruct the optimizer to record a missing extension.

NEW QUESTION: 2 Susan, a software developer, wants her web API to update other applications with the latest information. For this purpose, she uses a user-defined HTTP tailback or push APIs that are raised based on trigger events: when invoked, this feature supplies data to other applications so that users can instantly receive real-time information. Which of the following techniques is employed by Susan? A. web shells B. Webhooks C. REST API D. SOAP API Answer: B Explanation: Webhooks are one of a few ways internet applications will communicate with one another. It allows you to send real-time data from one application to another whenever a given event happens. For example, let's say you've created an application using the Foursquare API that tracks when people check into your restaurant. You ideally wish to be able to greet customers by name and provide a complimentary drink when they check in. What a webhook will do is notify you any time someone checks in, therefore you'd be able to run any processes that you simply had in your application once this event is triggered. The data is then sent over the web from the application wherever the event originally occurred, to the receiving application that handles the data. Here's a visual representation of what that looks like: A webhook url is provided by the receiving application, and acts as a phone number that the other application will call once an event happens. Only it's more complicated than a phone number, because data about the event is shipped to the webhook url in either JSON or XML format. this is known as the "payload." Here's an example of what a webhook url looks like with the payload it's carrying:

NEW QUESTION: 3What are the data sources available in RSA NetWitness when creating a Reporting Engine rule?A. IPDB, ODBC, FileReaderB. NetWitness DB, Warehouse DB, Respond DBC. Broker, Concentrator, DecoderD. Short, Long, TruncatedAnswer: C
