Authentication and AuthorizationRADIUS combines authentication and authorization. The access-accept packets sent by the RADIUS server tothe client contain authorization information. This makes it difficult to decouple authentication andauthorization.TACACS+ uses the AAA architecture, which separates AAA. This allows separate authentication solutionthat can still use TACACS+ for authorization and accounting. For example, with TACACS+, it is possible touse Kerberos authentication and TACACS+ authorization and accounting. After a NAS authenticates on aKerberos server, it requests authorization information from a TACACS+ server without having tore-authenticate. TheNAS informs the TACACS+ server that it has successfully authenticated on a Kerberos server, and the serverthen provides authorization information.During a session, if additional authorization checking is needed, the access server checks with a TACACS+server to determine if the user is granted permission to use a particular command. This provides greater controlover the commands that can be executed on the access server while decoupling from the authenticationmechanism.
