NEW QUESTION: 1 Carr Corp. declared a 7% stock dividend on its common stock. The dividend:
A. Must be registered with the SEC pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933.
B. Requires a vote of Carr's stockholders.
C. Has no effect on Carr's earnings and profits for federal income tax purposes.
D. Is includable in the gross income of the recipient taxpayers in the year of receipt.
Answer: C
Explanation: Choice "c" is correct. A stock dividend means that the corporation issues its existing shareholders more stock. In essence, the corporation is merely diluting the proportional ownership interest of existing shares. This has no effect on the corporation's earnings and profits for federal income tax purposes. Choice "a" is incorrect. There is no requirement that stock dividends be registered with the SEC because no "sale" is involved. Choice "b" is incorrect. The receipt of a stock dividend is not the recognition of income. It merely divides the stockholders' current ownership interests into more pieces; it does not increase proportional ownership interest in the corporation. Choice "d" is incorrect. The issuance of dividends, including stock dividends, is at the directors' discretion; shareholders do not vote on dividends.
