NEW QUESTION: 1A Cisco Application Control Engine Appliance (ACE) non-admin context does not support "sticky" configuration. What is the reason for this issue?A. ACE stickiness resources are not defined in an admin contextB. Stickiness is configured properly in the CCIE virtual contextC. ACE sticky license is not installedD. ACE stickiness is not supported in a non-admin contextAnswer: A*Explanation:Stickiness is an ACE feature that allows the same client to maintain multiple simultaneous or subsequent TCP or IP connections with the same real server for the duration of a session. A session is defined as a series of transactions between a client and a server over some finite period of time (from several minutes to several hours). This feature is particularly useful for e-commerce applications where a client needs to maintain multiple connections with the same server while shopping online, especially while building a shopping cart and during the checkout process.Depending on the configured SLB policy, the ACE "sticks" a client to an appropriate server after the ACE has determined which load-balancing method to use. If the ACE determines that a client is already stuck to a particular server, then the ACE sends that client request to that server, regardless of the load-balancing criteria specified by the matched policy. If the ACE determines that the client is not stuck to a particular server, it applies the normal load-balancing rules to the content requestReference:
